

If you are in a relationship where your spouse / partner / or caregiver:

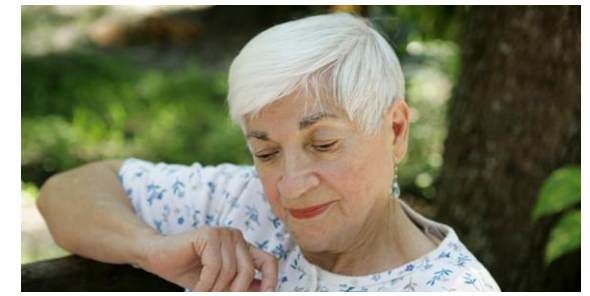

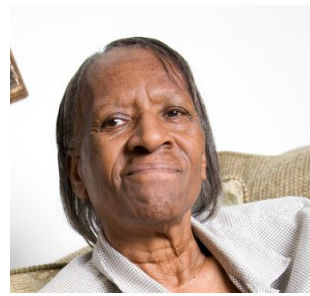

- Withholds medications
- Makes you miss medical appointments
- Takes or moves your walker, wheelchair, glasses or dentures
- Puts you on an allowance
- Limits your phone calls or access to mail
- Isolates you from friends and family
- Humiliates, demeans, or ridicules you
- Degrades or blames you
- Threatens to divorce or not divorce you
- Denies you access to ceremonial traditions or church, ignores religious traditions
- Makes all the major decisions
- Steals money, titles or possessions
- Takes over accounts, bills and spending without your permission

You are not alone.

A safe and confidential environment for mid life and older women to explore options, share feelings, experience support, increase feelings of self-worth, self-confidence and grow their independence.

An opportunity to learn new coping skills, characteristics of healthy and unhealthy relationships, ways of keeping safe, better communication and your rights as a person of worth.

Attend and see for yourself that....

Support from others lightens the burden.

Unmasking the dynamics of abuse is possible.

Positive affirmations stimulate personal growth.

Providing time for you is worth it.

Opportunities for personal growth abound, not matter what age you are.

Realization of options can lessen frustration and anger.

Trust grows as isolation ends and friendships form within the group.
